MISS HAZEL MOON, native of Appomattox and a missionary to Africa for many years, during a brief visit here took time out from her busy schedule to speak to students at Robert E. Lee Christian Academy last week.

Art classes at R. E. Lee Christian Academy had made projects for Miss Moon to take to children of the same age group in Africa. These African children are victims of leprosy.

At her visit to the Academy, Miss Moon held chapel services for school children followed by a question/answer period.

Shown with the students is Mrs. Patsy Myrich, art instructor, presenting projects to Miss Moon.

OBJECTS IN THE WINDOW at the Appomattox Arts & Crafts Center reflect the varied talents of local residents. Located in the historic N&W Depot on Main Street, the Arts and Crafts Center has opened for its second season. Hours are 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Stop by and see the fine aray of reasonably priced items made by local people. There's bound to be something there to strike your fancy!

RAYMOND BRYANT of Vera is shown above with a turkey he killed early Monday morning on the State Forest. He has been turkey hunting for 5 years and has kilelde four gobblers. This one weighed approximately 13 pounds.

He was hunting with Gene Chernault when he got this turkey.

listeners a brief history of Virginia's efforts during the Civil War and urged the crowd to preserve its county's history and accomplishments. His patriotic appeals stirring the crowd to frequent applause, he urged the women especially to become interested, saying that "men talk but women act". After encouraging the people to keep up the work of marking the local battlefield until it was properly completed and refuting North Carolina's claim that her men were "last (to fight) at Appomattox", Senator Daniel ended his speech and commenced shaking the hands of well-wishers as the chorus of singers sang "The Sweet Bye and Bye."

The monument's cornerstone was then laid by the Masons with the Hon. H. D. Flood giving the Masonic address.

After the formal portion of the ceremonies ended, it was announced that a dinner had been prepared for all present with "old soldiers" given the "right of way" to the tables. In an after dinner speech, former Confederate General Thomas T. Munford, present at Appomattox in 1865 as a leader of cavalry, "spoke feelingly of his old commander (Robert E. Lee)".

The day's events were judged by all to have been a success and promises to return for the monument's unveiling the next May were made as the crowd separated for their homes.

The monument was indeed dedicated the next year and ever since has stood with its soldier perched above silently watching the movement of the county's citizens on Court Street below.

Almost 70 years have passed since that Saturday in the fall of 1905 when Appomattox's war dead were remembered and honored. Their sacrifice and that of those sons who have fallen in battle since will again be remembered in May of this year. May we never forget today what so many gave yesterday.

Questions taken from old Appomattox newspapers and Buckingham Times describe part of the activity surrounding the laying of the cornerstones for the Confederate Monument near the "new" courthouse. The date was Saturday, October 14, 1905. Six months earlier the State of North Carolina unveiled a monument to perpetuate the memory of its warriors and now Appomattox was doing likewise.

Captain T. J. Stratton, commander of the Appomattox Camp of Confederate Veterans, and Mrs. Florence (John Randolph) Atwood, president of the Appomattox Chapter, U.D.C., were responsible for the elaborate arrangements of the day's events.

The Pamplin City Lodge and "many master Masons of the county performed the Masonic rites" afterwhich Chaplain J. B. Davidson "offered an inspiring prayer."

Senator John W. Daniel, himself once a Confederate major, delivered the principal address in which he gave his

First Baptist

Rev. James Cabell of Danville, Va., will be the guest speaker this Sunday, May 4 at 3 p.m. The public is invited to come.

The Ladies Aide Club will meet at Mrs. Hamlet's this Wednesday night. All ladies are asked to please be present.

Services were held at the First Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. Rev. Davis preached a wonderful sermon. Music was rendered by the senior choir under direction of Mrs. James. The Lord's Supper was served at the close of the morning service.

At 5 p.m. Mr. Paul Gardner and the Trying Gospel Singers of Lynchburg, rendered services. The program was sponsored by the Usher Board. The Usher Board wish to thank everyone who came to help make their program a success. Both services were enjoyed by all. We were happy to have all our visitors in both services. We invite you all to come again.
